Visit Isaiah's Corner: The Everhart Goes Evergreen The Everhart Museum's Interactive Gallery for Children Reopening on June 20, 2008

Scranton – May 23, 2008: Looking for a place where children can learn about natural history, science and art in an interactive setting? Come and visit Isaiah's Corner at the Everhart Museum of Natural History, Science & Art where they can experience an exhibit space designed with our youngest visitors in mind. The theme of Isaiah's Corner changes with and complements each of the museum's temporary exhibits, so there is always a new environment with fresh topics for children to learn about in a hands-on way.

Beginning June 20th and continuing through September 1, 2008, Isaiah's Corner: The Everhart Goes Evergreen, will provide children with a unique opportunity to learn about landscapes from the Art of the Land exhibit through themes of recycling, fuel sources around the world, materials and garbage, environmental conservation and community activism. Touch, play, create, and discover things about going green and becoming eco-conscious!

Please note that adult guidance is required at all times. So come to the museum and stop by Isaiah's Corner to learn about conserving our natural landscapes with your children. Then go visit our galleries where you and your children can apply your new knowledge of conservation in our temporary exhibits, Art of the Land: John Willard Raught and the NEPA Landscape Tradition, and Mining the Landscape: Student Environmental Art.

The Everhart Museum is open: noon-4:00 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Monday; 10:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. on Saturday; and noon-5:00 p.m. on Sunday. Admission is $5/adults, $3/students & seniors, $2/children 6-12, and free to Everhart Museum members. For more information, contact the museum at 570-346-7186 or email general.information@everhart-museum.org.
